
"of awesome proportions"

Peter Forrester, Sunday Times, 15/01/2006

The Prodigy Shiraz 2002 is a powerful and voluptuous red of awesome proportions. This is as impressive a shiraz as you'll get from Coonawarra.

"sexy, exotic oak tones"

Stephen Tanzer, International Wine Cellar

Inky violet colour. Exotic, oak-spicy bouquet of blackberry and cassis liqueur, star anise, mocha and pungent floral oils. Sweet, fat and velvety, with lush berry liqueur, kirsch, candied licorice, vanilla and cinnamon flavours clinging tenaciously to the palate. The flavours deepen and build through the finish, which echoes the sexy, exotic oak tones. A must-try for fans of opulent densely packed shiraz.

"soft, lush seductress"

Philip White, The Advertiser, 23/11/2005

A wallow more than a romp, this soft, lush seductress seems all milk chocolate and blackberry nip to begin. By the time you realise there's more and more of the same to come, growing more voluptuous, you realise you're trapped in the gilded palace of sin and might just as well stay there, if you can afford it. It's impossibly smooth and easy.

"standout Katnook Estate"

Food & Wine Magazine, USA

This flagship bottling from Coonawarra standout Katnook Estate, produced only in top years, recalls cocoa and red currants, with a hint of black pepper.

1999

"as close to perfection as the real world allows..."

James Halliday

Medium to full red-purple; complex ripe mulberry, blackberry, bramble, spice and cedar aromas come rippling through the bouquet; a similarly complex and intense palate, with good balance and length. The oak has not been overplayed.
